policies and procedures

Our 'policies and procedures' are the rules about how we do things at Pyramid.

Following our policies and procedures helps to keep everybody safe.

The policies and procedures also tell us what to do if something goes wrong.

It is important that everybody at Pyramid can access and understand our policies and procedures.

The office team can help with this.

Please contact us if you would like support to read or understand this policy.

We can meet with you to talk about it. Or we can provide information in different format / language to suit your needs.

Definition of ‘mentoring’

There are many definitions of mentoring, but a straightforward one is “an experienced person acting as a sounding board and critical friend to help someone develop their abilities or run a business” (Small Firms Enterprise Development Initiative, 2011).

Mentoring or the giving of advice within Pyramid

Mentoring is not a service which Pyramid formally offers to its members, employees or freelance workers.

‘Mentor’ is not a formal paid role within Pyramid.

However, we recognise that sometimes workers may be ‘acting as a sounding board and a critical friend’ to the person they are talking to as part of their existing contracted work, and they are expected to abide by all Pyramid policies and procedures while providing this advice.

For example:

- employees talking to freelance workers about projects
- freelance workers talking to members about projects.

Receiving mentoring or advice from external parties

We recognise that, often, our freelance workers or members may seek advice from artists outside Pyramid, about Pyramid projects. We acknowledge the value of this kind of informal support in the development of artists.

- When talking about Pyramid projects with external individuals you must continue to behave according to our policies and procedures (with particular regard to confidentiality and privacy).
- If you wish to receive paid advice or mentoring from an external party (for instance through our ‘16% for Art’ scheme), you must gain approval for this from the Director and Operations Manager in advance. That external party may then be contracted to deliver support to you, and would themselves be subject to Pyramid’s policies and procedures.
- Pyramid will not pay for mentoring or advice given to one of its workers or members without prior agreement and proper contract arrangements.

- Please note that providing mentoring or advice on a project or idea does not guarantee a paid role working on that project, or imply any ownership over the project.
- If you have developed a project idea with the support of an external party that you want to deliver at Pyramid, you need to follow our Project Proposal Procedure. If you plan to work with that external party on the project, that person would first need to be recruited and contracted as a Pyramid artist according to our policy on Recruitment, Induction and Training for Artist Facilitators.

Providing advice outside of Pyramid

- Employees who are asked, in a professional capacity, to provide support or advice for non-Pyramid activities must remember that they are representing Pyramid and abide by its policies and procedures.
- Employees should seek approval from their line manager before agreeing to give support or advice on behalf of Pyramid.
- Employees must be careful not to give advice that falls outside of their expertise, and to clearly differentiate opinion from fact. For example, not advising on financial matters such as benefit entitlement or self-assessment tax returns.
- Freelance workers providing mentoring, support or advice to external parties do so in their own right, and do not represent Pyramid or its views. Pyramid is not responsible for the activities of freelancers beyond their contracted Pyramid work.
